

MOODS

Of the

Week

SIP HAPPENS.

MONDAY

Monday is often seen as the most unproductive day of the week. After a weekend of relaxation, it can be challenging to transition back into the work mindset. This "Monday blues" phenomenon often results in procrastination, lower energy, and slower work progress, making it a notoriously difficult day to get things done effectively.

What a drag....

Tuesday.

HUSTLE

ENERGY.

No nonsense.

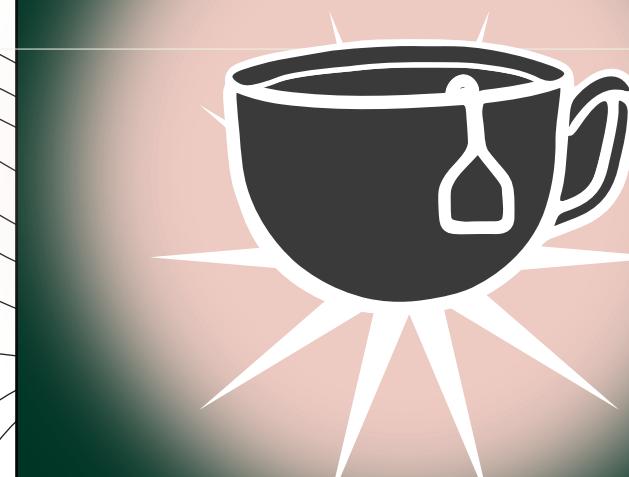

Wednesday

TRANQUILITEA

A cup of tea calms the mind and eases the day. With each sip, life slows down for a moment. Tea is a simple way to find peace in the middle of a hectic week.

Morning

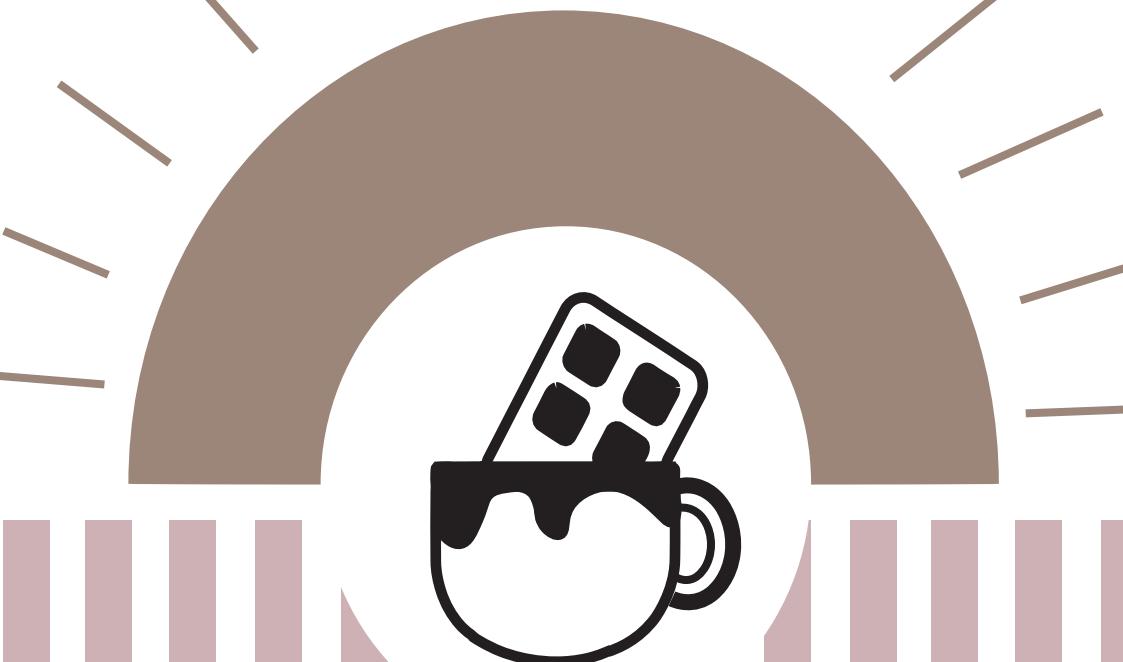

TRANQUILITEA

An untroubled state, free of worries.

SUNDAY DREAD

People often dread Sundays due to the looming return to work or school, leading to anxiety known as the "Sunday Scaries." The loss of weekend freedom and the pressure of unfinished tasks contribute to this unease.
